RECYCLED FUNCTIONALITY: NORMANN COPENHAGEN INTRODUCES COLU BASKET

Normann Copenhagen introduces Colu Basket, a thoughtful new addition to the brand's storage repertoire. Designed by Belgian designer Baptiste Vandaele, Colu Basket combines a contemporary aesthetic with practical functionality, crafted from recycled PET felt – a soft yet durable material derived from discarded post-consumer plastic bottles.

Inspired by the timeless elegance of Roman columns, Baptiste Vandaele translates classical architecture into a modern storage solution. The basket's distinctive, rhythmic repetition of hollowed arches flow seamlessly into integrated handles, embodying the designer's core philosophy of 'form follows function.'

“In my work, I aim to rethink archetypes,” explains Baptiste. “With Colu, I wanted to challenge basic shapes, infusing them with a sense of rhythm and tactility, all while maintaining practicality”.

With its balanced proportions and versatile utility, Colu Basket presents an aesthetic yet functional solution for organizing magazines, toys or household essentials. Its lightweight yet sturdy construction ensures it meets the demands of everyday life, while its understated elegance allows it to blend seamlessly into any modern living space.
